

Contents

Artist Statement	7
Introduction Tanja Tajmel, Klaus Starl & Susanne Spintig	9
Part I Human Rights
A Human Rights-Based Approach to Equitable Access to STEM Education Nada Al-Nashif	17
Declaration on the Human Right to Science Education	23
The Human Right to Science Education Re-Examined Klaus Starl	25
Understanding the Human Right to Science: CESCR General Comment No. 25 (2020) Gerd Oberleitner	41
Modelling the Human Rights Approach to Science Education Tanja Tajmel	61
Part II Science/STEM Education
PISA and the Politics of Science Education Svein Sjøberg	81
STEM Curriculum Development: The Case of Turkey Seval Fer	103
Education and Post-War Politics: The Case of Bosnia-Herzegovina Lamija Tanović	115
Maria Felipa Afro-Brazilian School: A Proposal for Emancipating and Antiracist Child Education Lorena Lacerda, Bruno de Jesus Brito Santana & Bárbara Carine Soares Pinheiro .	131

Part III Gender and STEM

Transdisciplinary Research on ‘Gender’ in Science, Technology, and Society Petra Lucht	147
Barriers to Space: “One Giant Leap” for Canadian Early-Career STEM Women Stefanie Ruel	169
Gender Barriers to Scientific Rewards: Inequitable Practices in Research Evaluation Gita Ghiasi	193
Diversity Mentoring Mission Statements: A Case Study of a Participatory Approach Susanne Spintig & Tanja Tajmel	209
Authors	219