

Table of Contents

Abstract	11
1. Introduction	13
1.1 The Morning Circle in Academic Discussion	14
1.2 Ritual as the Framework of Circle Analysis	16
1.3 Stating Questions	22
1.3.1 Beyond the Talking Circle	24
1.3.2 Order and Power in the Playful Morning Circle	26
1.3.3 Qualitative versus Quantitative Research	28
1.4 Structure of this Research	29
2. The Morning Circle as Ritual Performance	33
2.1 Ritual as a Dynamic Process: The Transformation of Ritual Study	34
2.1.1 Ritual as an Academic Discourse: From Myth to Social Practice	34
2.1.2 Towards a Dynamic Ritual: Ritual as a Performance Process	38
2.1.2.1 Ritual as the Performing and Transmission of Cultural Heritage	38
2.1.2.2 Ritual as the Constructing and Performing of Social Institutions	40
2.2 The Morning Circle as Theatrical Ritual Performance	42
2.2.1 The Morning Circle as Performative Ritual	43
2.2.2 Make a Difference: The Ludic Element of the Morning Circle	46
2.3 Body and Mimesis	49
2.3.1 Paralanguage: The Body as an Anthropological Topic	49
2.3.2 The Unnatural Body	51
2.3.3 The Creative Body: Body and Mimesis	52
2.3.4 Gesture: Language of the Body	54
Chapter Summary	56

3.	Methodology and Methods	58
3.1	Participant Observation as Performing Ethnography	58
3.1.1	Problems of Participant Observation	58
3.1.2	Participant Observation as Performative Process	62
3.1.2.1	Phase One	62
3.1.2.2	Phase Two	64
3.1.2.3	Phase Three	65
3.2	Videography in the Classroom: How Kids Play with the Camera	66
3.3	An Analytical Tool: Documentary Methods of Video-Interpretation	67
3.3.1	Documentary Methods	68
3.3.2	The Application of Documentary Method in this Study	70
3.3.2.1	Two Provisos: Conjunctive Experience and the Double Structure of the Body	70
3.3.2.2	Performativity in Video: Dimensions of Video Analysis	71
	Chapter Summary	73
4.	The School Field: Creating a Communicative Living Space	74
4.1	The School as a Building	74
4.1.1	The School in the City	74
4.1.2	The Internal Structure of the School	75
4.1.3	The Playground	77
4.1.4	School as a Communicative Social Space	78
4.2	The School Profile: The School as a Community	79
4.2.1	The School Reform in Process: The Way to a Community	79
4.2.2	The Incongruence of Space and Culture	81
4.3	A Routine Day: We are a Jena-Plan School now	82
4.3.1	The Rhythm of a Routine School Day	82
4.3.2	Heterogeneous Children in a Homogenous School Setting	84
4.3.3	Teacher as Nurturer vs. Teacher as Pedagogue	86
4.3.4	Parents as Participants	87
4.4	An Analysis Unit: Introduction to Class X	88
	Chapter Summary	90

5.	A Sketch of the Morning Circle: Performance in the Circle	91
5.1	Prologue: The Morning Circle as Routine Performance . . .	92
5.2	Preparation: The Classroom as a Dynamic, Interactive Space	93
5.2.1	The Mobility of the Chairs: The Construction of the Classroom	95
5.2.2	The Creating of Scenes: Forming a Positive Atmosphere . .	97
5.3	Staging and Performance: Everything is in Order	99
5.3.1	Organization of Space: Let's sit in a Circle	100
5.3.2	Organization of Time: Time Sequences as Structured Time Shaping	101
5.3.3	Dramatic Transition: From Chaos to Silence	104
5.3.4	Body Movement in the Circle	105
5.3.4.1	Sitting as Basic Form	106
5.3.4.2	The Preeminence of Hands	107
5.3.4.3	Facial Expressions: Glancing and Gazing	109
5.3.4.4	Communicative Body	110
5.3.5	Language	110
5.3.5.1	The Art of Speaking	111
5.3.5.2	Speech Act(s): Das ist aber schön!	113
5.3.5.3	Communicative Language in the Circle	115
5.4	The Ending: Informal Parting of the Morning Circle	116
	Chapter Summary	117
6.	The Reconstruction of the Scenes: On Orders and the Ludic	119
6.1	Meta-Communicative Framework: Making an Acquaintanceship	120
6.1.1	The Circle as a Natural Form: Performativity of the Circle .	121
6.1.2	Greeting and Parting Rituals	123
6.2	Establishing Order	126
6.2.1	Cyclic Time in the Morning Circle	127
6.2.2	The Circle Space as an Active Zone	130
6.2.3	Civilization in the Practice of Order	133
6.2.3.1	Framing the Professional Schooling Posture	133
6.2.3.2	Talkativeness as Main Criterion of Competence	137
6.2.4	A Disorderly Moment as Promoter of Readjusting	140

6.2.5	Spoilsports: Who Breaks the Rules and Who Deserves to be Punished	145
6.2.6	Under the Auspices of Order	149
6.3	The Ludic Morning Circle: Power In-Between	149
6.3.1	Have Fun!	150
6.3.2	Gender as Game: Between Playful and Serious	153
	Chapter Summary	155
7.	Discussion	157
7.1	Magic Circle Rituals as a Basic Framework of Modern School Practice	157
7.2	Rethinking Method and Methodology	162
	Bibliography	165
	Appendix: Transcription Key	175